A graduate of Troy High School in college prep with an emphasis on fine art, Eve went on to study art education at Bowling Green State University. She got her Master's degree from Wright State University in Teacher Leadership. Retired from teaching elementary art in the Northmont City Schools, Eve has returned to the classroom as a substitute teacher with Miami County Educational Service Center. Eve has also worked as a portrait photographer and enjoys mixing her love for the outdoors and hiking with her love of photography. While growing up, the Troy-Hayner Cultural Center was home to the Troy Public Library. Returning to the center to teach art classes is a special joy to Eve.
